Cloud Service

IBM Workload Automation on Cloud is a service management solution that allows Clients to model the business processes one time to a level of detail that allows defining workflows with automation to allow running them in an unattended manner, then to run these workflows every time they are needed. The reduced need for human intervention allows efficient execution and high-level governance over large quantities of executed processes. Individual process execution elements are called jobs. They describe an activity performed on a system or an application. IBM Workload Automation on Cloud can:

- combine jobs into flows and attach conditions in any point of the flow;
- automate the execution of jobs at the specified moment; and
- present jobs and flows in summarized views where they can be monitored and manipulated.

IBM Workload Automation on Cloud Step up for existing Customers is an optional way to purchase the Cloud Service for Clients who have previously obtained licenses and Subscription & Support for the IBM Workload Automation program from IBM, or an IBM authorized third party.
