We acknowledge that COVID-19 has changed the goal posts and as a result the way we work has changed. In order to boost the recovery we as a company:

Provide our staff flexibility as standard, with remote working, flexible working hours and various options to ensure that the wellbeing of our team is paramount.

We are making time for downtime, hosting team get togethers outside of the work setting, encouraging a 'lets talk' culture.

We have are involved directly with a number of organisations in the healthcare sector to provide technology solutions that have no boundaries to where care takes place, during the pilot in early 2022 this service provided over 6,000 hours of additional clinical care to our local area (Devon).

Tackling economic inequality

Our flexible working model allows many of our colleagues to travel at times that are cheaper/less busy. Flexible working also supports colleagues from a wider set socioeconomic groups as it can help colleagues to balance caring responsibilities, health needs, etc.

A cycle to work scheme is available to all employees, giving access to bicycles and cycling accessories at significantly reduced rates.

Social value has many different definitions. To us it is the positive impact we have on improving outcomes for people in the community through our work with clients and as an employer. We want to add more value for the wider community.

We have partnered with one of our clients, and are in the process of creating an apprenticeship scheme so that college leavers have the option for work placement with us.
