Microsoft 365

Service Definition

Service Overview

Ceox Microsoft 365 helps Public Sector organisations improve productivity, collaboration and communication. Office 365 (within Microsoft 365) replaces ageing file shares, creates team sites for project collaboration and provides a digital workplace solution with business productivity tools. Deliver services more efficiently, reduce costs, meet user needs and increase staff happiness

Microsoft 365 (formerly Office 365) replaces aging file shares, creates team sites for collaboration and provides a digital workplace solution with business productivity tools. Office 365, part of the Microsoft 365 suite, delivers services more efficiently, reduces costs, meets user needs and increases staff happiness.

Many organisations are seeing the benefits of moving to Microsoft 365 which delivers a Digital workplace Solution based on the Microsoft Online Services including Exchange Online, Microsoft Teams, SharePoint Online (“Sites”), Skype, OneDrive, Delve, Sway, and the Office Desktop Tools (Web Apps or Office Professional Plus).

Government organisations often use Microsoft 365 to get the latest desktop tools and then introduce the cloud tools that effectively come free with them. Ceox can help organisations make use of the other features that come for free in Microsoft 365 including:

- SharePoint as an alternative to older EDRM systems which often aren’t used as much as they should be because of their usability.
- Microsoft Teams for internal video conferencing and external calls when combined with a suitable PBX.
- OneDrive for individual cloud-based document storage.
- Power BI for organisation business intelligence and reporting functionality.
- Microsoft Teams for team collaboration and to create a working space for a project

Ceox helps organisations use Microsoft 365 to deliver digital services, simplify IT management and access best practice security features, performance and reliability.

Using Microsoft’s productivity tools to focus on productivity, collaboration and communication organisations can enhance staff satisfaction, reduce costs and improve efficiencies.
