

CYBER SECURITY CONSULTANCY SERVICES

CYBER THREAT LANDSCAPE

With unprecedented challenges and changes in working practices in recent years, technology adoption has evolved at a rapid pace.

With new technologies comes new threats. And as organisations adopt new systems and solutions and move to new ways of working, their IT security measures, and threat awareness are not necessarily keeping pace.

Despite significant changes introduced by remote and hybrid, only 3 in 10 organisations are reported to have undertaken any form of cyber security risk assessment or audit.

At the same time, cyber threats that would once have been the reserve of multi-national companies and enterprise-level organisations are being increasingly directed at SMEs and less obvious targets, such as education, charities and healthcare providers. This has required a fast adaptation to a new threat landscape.
