Get expert guidance from veterans in your industry

Public Sector works differently, and your Microsoft partner needs to understand that. Without real industry knowledge, they'll set up systems that fight against how you work instead of supporting it.

That's why we put Public Sector veterans in charge of your project. We're talking former executives. People who've solved your exact challenges. They know the constraints, the workarounds, and what gets results.

"HSO's implementation delivered a solution that reduced manual work and improved process efficiency while providing the capability for departmental groups to have insight into their cases addressing inadequate case management systems and effort duplication."

"The collaboration between Basildon and HSO is a prime example of how technology can drive meaningful change in the public sector. This project is setting a new standard for local government and inspiring others to follow suit."

"Over 1,500 homes across the city now have assistive technology. It provides reassurance for the families but also gives independence for the individual."
