

Ensuring Every Child's Welfare

Studybugs helps secure the best outcomes for children by improving safeguarding and school attendance through targeted early intervention.

Studybugs Cohorts empowers local authority children's teams to work together with schools, academy trusts, police, the NHS and parents to safeguard children and raise school attendance.

Staff working in attendance, inclusion, admissions, virtual school, SEND, social care and more can access live information on school absence, exclusions, safeguarding, health and welfare, for all children in the LA, whether they're at school in or out of area.

Cohorts ensures the right people get the right information at the right time to enable effective intervention at the earliest opportunity. And it provides tools for coordinating action, logging what's been done, and monitoring the impact.

Studybugs works with dozens of local authorities and more than 6,000 schools and alternative provisions to help ensure the welfare of 1.5 million children.

“It's an utter game changer.”

– Jane Lawley, Children's Services, Royal Borough of Greenwich
