The Supplier shall not be held responsible for any loss incurred due wholly or in part to the Customer failing to do this.

- 15.5 If within twenty-eight (28) days before termination, the Customer has requested the Supplier in writing to provide assistance in relation to transitioning the terminated Cloud Services back in-house or to an alternative provider, the Supplier will use reasonable efforts to provide the assistance requested for a period not exceeding one (1) month after termination provided that (i) the Customer pays the Supplier for its assistance at the Supplier's then prevailing time & materials rates; (ii) the Supplier shall be entitled to invoice in advance for such part of the anticipated assistance that it considers reasonable; and (iii) where the transition is to an alternative provider, that provider shall have entered with the Supplier into written confidentiality undertakings in form and substance reasonably acceptable to the Supplier.

- 15.7.2 shall not be entitled to receive any Charges for the Cloud Services other than ongoing power and IP Transit charges.
- 15.7.3 As soon as the Supplier can reasonably demonstrate that the Insolvency Event no longer persists, then the Customer shall as soon as is reasonably practicable and, in any event, within fourteen (14) days cease the exercise of the Step-in Right and the Supplier shall resume the provision of the Cloud Services.

Such flow and/or storage depend in large part on the performance of internet services and/or telecommunications networks provided or controlled by third parties. At times, actions or inactions of such third parties can impair or disrupt the Supplier's connections to the internet (or portions thereof) or such other platforms upon which access to the Cloud Services may be provided. Although the Supplier will use reasonable efforts to take all actions reasonably necessary to remedy and avoid such events, the Supplier cannot guarantee that such events will not occur.
