Application Modernisation Service.

Our Application Modernisation service is designed to be cost effective and pragmatic, supporting organisations take advantage of cloud technology without substantial investment or application code change.

Organisations are constantly seeking more intelligent ways to leverage technology, aiming to enhance agility, optimise costs, and allocate time and resources toward digital transformation initiatives. By adopting modern architectures and container management processes, applications can seamlessly transition to the cloud. This transition leads to improved optimisation of capital expenditures (CapEx) and operational expenditures (OpEx), heightened security through application surface area reduction, and enhanced portability across various cloud providers.

Our team collaborates with clients to identify the most suitable candidates for this new cloud-centric paradigm. During the initial project phase, we establish mechanisms that facilitate cloud adoption. These mechanisms include processes and automation for testing, security checks, and release management, ensuring that each application is platform-ready. By implementing this service, businesses can confidently migrate to the cloud, benefiting from our framework that mitigates risk and enhances stability while distributing applications between on-premises and public or private cloud environments.
