Summary

Insights derived from clinical data interrogation are fundamental to the delivery of timely, appropriate and value-driven personalised care models. They are essential to building a healthcare system that continually learns from and improves upon the care delivered.

To transform healthcare, data needs a broader and more flexible infrastructure that is accessible to multiple collaborators. That infrastructure needs to be capable of surfacing information quickly and at scale, combining open-source technologies, application program interfaces and cloud storage architecture.

EMIS-X Analytics is a cloud-based analytics suite of tools and includes Explorer. This product enables Data Engineers and Business Intelligence Analysts to query data at scale and speed to help organisations optimise healthcare delivery.
