The data access level via Chat D&B is still provisioned by what a user has contracted for, e.g. Blocks of attributes, and the block levels. The access can be through an API, Data Lake such as Google Cloud, Databricks or Snowflake or via a batch method.

We continuously monitor our vast number of sources for changes that impact information in the Dun & Bradstreet Data Cloud, including dynamic changes to business relationships. Changes are verified, and updates made to the Data Cloud as relevant. Our Data Blocks Monitoring capability advises of such changes.

To access the D&B Data Cloud there are now a number of AI tools for many public sector use cases using standard protocols – as below:

MCP (Model Context Protocol):

Is an open standard framework that allows AI models—like large language models (LLMs)—to connect with external tools, data sources, and systems in a structured, secure, and scalable way.

The D&B MCP supports integration, acting as a universal connector for:

- D&B Agent-Ready Data
- D&B Agent-Ready Answers
- D&B Agents

A2A (Agent-to-Agent Protocol) are complementary, open-standard protocols for AI agents to securely communicate, share tasks, and coordinate with each other, allowing the agents to work together across platforms.

- The D&B MCP will act like a universal connector, allowing multiple AI agents to collaborate.

Agents:

These are smart digital assistants that can automatically gather, analyse, and summarise business information for you. Agents can check supplier backgrounds, spot risks, and help with compliance—saving you time and reducing manual work.

Chat D&B:

This is an easy-to-use chat tool that lets you ask questions and get instant, reliable business information from D&B's trusted database. Whether you need to check a company's financial health, ownership, or compliance status, you can get answers in plain language, right when you need them.
