

Test Automation

Edge Testing Solutions Ltd trading as Resillion's Test Automation service covers all phases of test automation, from selecting the right test tool, building a framework, execution to training users. We ensure the approach delivered meets your testing requirements by making testing faster and lower cost whilst improving test coverage, within a framework that is easily maintained.

We have deep expertise in many of the leading open source and proprietary tools but remain independent and objective recommending the best tools for the job. We target areas that will derive maximum benefit from automation whilst identifying areas where benefits and ROI are difficult to achieve. Engagements range from traditional automation of regression packs, agile environments and innovative use of automation tools and techniques to support data transfer between business applications. Our expertise is deployed over traditional and cutting edge methodologies including CI/CD and DevOps. We have the knowledge and technical know-how to deploy AI tools to complement the test automation tool deployed to reduce the manual effort required to maintain automated test scripts.
